City Court Fines, Fees, Collected In February Total $1,050

A total of $1,065 was paid into the Torrance city court in fines and fees during the month of February, according to the monthly report of Judge Otto B. Willett. Of this sum, $861 was allotted to the general fund and $194 derived from motor vehicle violations was earmarked as road fund monies. Seven civil actions were disposed of from which fees amounting to $10 were collected.
Illegal parking topped the list of offenses with 77 cases reported, drunkenness came next with 28, boulevard stops and miscellaneous traffic cases were reported at 20 each. Six were cited for disturbing the peace and one for drunk driving. One juvenile was certified to the county authorities. There were 137 convictions and 15 decreed not guilty.

War Prisoners' Pay Question Comes Up

U. S. Agriculture Department attorneys have ruled that farmers employing prisoners of war on crops for which the wage rate is fixed should pay the prisoners 80 cents per day and the remainder to the War Department.
The question of prisoner pay came up in the case of sugar beets, where prisoners are expected to be employed. Wage rates for sugar beet workers are fixed under the Sugar Act, but international agreements fix prisoners wages at 80 cents per day.
The Agriculture Department opinion holds that the Sugar Act is complied with if a farmer pays the prescribed wage rate to the War Department rather than to the prisoners.

Honey Supply Seen For Civilian Uses

California civilians will be amply supplied with honey, despite the fact a large part of the state's record production of 26,000,000 pounds in 1943 has gone to the armed forces and lend-lease channels, according to H. M. Wehrs, apimary entomologist of the California department of agriculture.
Noting the state's crop was valued at about $4,000,000, Krebs pointed out that California's production showed an increase while the national trend was downward. Southern California with the exception of San Diego County, and the San Joaquin valley were the leading producing sections.
Consumers will have to put up with smaller containers, however, because the larger ones are unobtainable, Krebs said. But they have this advantage: Honey isn't rationed.

Dehydration Better Than Sun-Drying

Dehydration of fruits yields a cleaner product of better quality than sun-drying, Dr. H. J. Pfaff, associate in the department of fruit products laboratory on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, said that while two important properties, acidity and sugar content, permit fruits to be sun-dried with a minimum of spoilage, the dehydration method offers many advantages.
Dehydration in combination with steam blanching gives a superior product free of insects, microbes and dry-rot dirt, he pointed out. There is a saving in labor, drying time, quicker turn-over of drying equipment and a higher vitamin content. Also the sulfuring time may be reduced by one-third as compared to sun-drying.
Former director of dull-looking fruit as compared to glossy translucent apricots, peaches and pears has been overcome by the steam blanching. The slightly higher cost of the dehydrated fruit is compensated for by the better product, Dr. Pfaff said.
